How CBD Works in the Body

CBD interacts with the body through a system known as the endocannabinoid system (ECS). This complex network of receptors plays a key role in regulating many bodily functions, including:

- Mood
- Sleep
- Stress response
- Appetite
- Pain perception
- Immune system response

When CBD enters the body, it interacts with ECS receptors and may help support the body’s natural ability to maintain balance (homeostasis). By influencing this system, CBD may contribute to improved relaxation, emotional stability, and physical comfort.
